REFUGEES
most of us live in cities, some in villages, some in towns. some of us live in apartments or in row houses.

and the nice part is that most of us live in places that are peaceful.
in some parts of the world, natural disasters such as floods, hurricanes, earthquakes or volcanoes, force people out of their homes, too.
in some parts of the world, people's lives, houses and freedoms are destroyed by war.
these situations force people out of their homes, into another place.
when such people leave to another place in the same country, they are called INTERNALLY DISPLACED PERSONS when such people leave to another country, they are called REFUGEES when refugees seek protection under the law as a refugee, he is called an asylum seeker. The authorities will then study this claim to see if the person is a refugee under law.
refugees have been forced out of their homes to foreign lands, and in recent times, many of them have been forced out on boats or to swim their way out.
in these new lands, refugees then make their own settlements to try to make a livelihood Life is challenging for refugees: basic needs are out of access, healthcare is difficult to find, safety is a concern.
the truth is that refugees are human and have lost their normal lives.
they do not deserve discrimination, they deserve support and solidarity.
